

U.S. Department of Defense United States Transportation Command

The U.S. Transportation Command is the leading provider of transportation services to the United States' military, federal agencies, and foreign partners.

The U.S. Transportation Command operates an extensive fleet of transportation assets, in addition to leveraging strategic relationships with international commercial providers, to deliver full-spectrum global mobility solutions to customers around the world.

In coordination with the Defense Security Cooperation Agency, the U.S. Transportation Command and Defense Logistics Agency Distribution offer our customers tailored and cost-effective solutions for worldwide transportation, integrated logistics and distribution services.

Benefits include:

- One-stop shop capabilities
- Material consolidation
- Classified and hazardous material support
- U.S. Defense Transportation System rates and routes
- Multi-modal capabilities
- Reduced friction points
- Enhanced military-to-military coordination

